Central Asia solar Glass

Why is India's glass industry growing so fast?

India's glass producers and downstream processors have steadily expanded their capacities with new tempering,insulation,lamination,and coating glass lines. The country possesses more glass processing lines than any other Asian country,barring China. India's rapid growth is partly driven by government initiatives like Make in India.

What drives the demand for architectural glass in India?

Rapid urbanisation and infrastructure developmentdrive the demand for architectural glass in buildings,offices,and residential complexes. Automobiles,which require glass,are another significant contributor to the Indian glass market.

Why is glass packaging design important in emerging Asian markets?

Emerging Asian markets are characterised by a circular economythat dominates glass packaging design and functionality. The objective is to design sustainably to minimise consumption,renew materials and products,and reduce the environmental impact.
